Content (Syllabus outline):
The course represents a continuation of the study of basic and mandatory administrative law subjects the master's study program "Public Administration". It examines material administrative law regime from perspective of theory, general administrative law, constitutional law and international law and analyses its importance for the existence, operation and development of the rule-of-law, social and democratic state.

upravno sodne in ustavno sodne prakse ter mednarodne in primerjalne sodne prakse, predvsem argumenti, ki se osredotočajo na temeljne metode, načela in teste te prakse. V prvem delu se na predmet ukvarja z ustavnimi in filozofskimi izhodišči upravnega prava in upravno pravne znanosti. V drugem delu pa z razmerji upravnega prava do drugih pravnih vej in njegova razmejitev z njimi in načeli zakonitosti in problemi zakonitosti uprave ter sodno presoja zakonitosti uprave. V tretjem delu obravnava specifične upravne teorije. Nadaljevanje študija sledi posebni problematiki kandidatove doktorske disertacije na podlagi relevantne slovenske, mednarodne in primerjalne upravno sodne in ustavno sodne prakse.

The starting point of doctoral studies represent theoretical knowledge and interpretation of administrative and judicial-administrative and constitutional jurisprudence and international and comparative jurisprudence, in particular the arguments that focus on the fundamental methods, principles and tests of such practice. The course deals in the first part with constitutional and philosophical backgrounds of administrative law and administrative law science. In the second part, the course examines relationship of administrative law to other legal branches and its demarcation with them and the principles of legality and the legality of the problems of government and judicial review of the lawfulness of the acts administration. The third part deals with specific administrative theories. The course concludes with detailed examination of candidate's proposed topic of his/her doctoral thesis based on examination of relevant Slovenian, international and comparative judicial and constitutional jurisprudence.
